Since the previous University Council meeting in February 2008, the Undergraduate Assembly has passed the following proposals:

ANNUAL BUDGET (~$1.8 million to the other branches of student government)

ADDITION TO UA STATUS REPORT

UPDATES FROM OTHER UNDERGRADUATE UC SEATHELDERS

- On April 16, 2008 (Terrace Room/7 pm), Programs in Religion, Interfaith, and Spirituality Matters (PRISM) will be hosting a speaker event, “RELIGION ROCKS THE FREE WORLD: HOW FAITH IMPACTS OUR LOCAL AND GLOBAL LIVES”. This speaker event features Professor John Dilulio and will be followed by a panel comprised of major student leaders on campus. You will hear about and discuss religion’s role in politics and policy-making, in college and the world at-large. All are encouraged to attend.

- The UMOJA (umbrella organization for students and student groups of the African Diaspora) Executive Board recently turned over, and its main goals for the year include the pushing for DuBois College House renovations, the creation of a UMOJA Blog for better communication among constituent members, and the utilization of Facebook as an outlet to reach students and student groups. UMOJA is also working on Scholars Weekend (April 13-15), which brings prospective students of color to Penn’s campus for a weekend.

- The United Minorities Council (UMC) has been continuing to advocate for a comprehensive study on campus climate, the full-scale renovation of DuBois College House, and the renovation of the ARCH. In addition, we have been working with Penn Leads the Vote to encourage voter mobilization in the 2008 Election. Finally, the UMC will be celebrating the 30th anniversary of its founding at Penn with its Celebration of Cultures event April 17 on College Green, and an evening banquet April 19 at the Inn at Penn.

- Asian Pacific Student Coalition (APSC) recently finished the first stage of its voter registration efforts with the Power to [A] People Campaign. Thus far, they have registered hundreds of voters at APSC general body meetings, constituent events, and shows. On February 26, 2008, APSC held its Mental Health Camp, in conjunction with UMC and the Mental Health Coalition. They are currently working on Minority Scholars Weekend and maintaining their efforts to increase admission outreach to underrepresented Southeast Asian and Pacific Islander students.
