Undergraduate Assembly
Constituency Update

UA Leadership Transition
As you will have doubtless read in the Daily Pennsylvanian, Matt Amalfitano and Mark Pan have been elected the President and Vice-President of the UA, respectively. They will take office at the end of semester and will serve as the undergraduate representatives on the University Council Steering Committee for the 2010-2011 Academic Year.

UA Ratification of the Charter of the Council of Philadelphia Student Governments
In other exciting news, the UA has joined the Council of Philadelphia Student Governments (CPSG). This new federation of student governments in the city of Philadelphia will focus on policy issues of concern to all Philadelphia students, and will ideally make the voice of the 200,000 college students in this city heard a little louder than before. Student governments from Temple, Drexel, the University of the Sciences, Chestnut Hill, and St. Joseph’s are also members – we hope to expand to around 12 schools by the end of the academic year.

Respectfully submitted,
